Numb. 12233.

The London Gazette.

Published by Authority.

From Saturday October 13, to Tuesday October 16, 1781.

Dublin-Caſtle, October 9, 1781.

THIS Day the Parliament having met, according to the laſt Prorogation, his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant went in State to the Houſe of Peers, and being ſeated on the Throne with the uſual Solemnity, Andrew Corbet, Eſq; Gentleman Uſher of the Black Rod, was ſent with a Meſſage from his Excellency to the Houſe of Commons, ſignifying his Pleaſure that they ſhould immediately attend his Excellency in the Houſe of Peers: The Commons being come thither accordingly, his Excellency made the following Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

IN Obedience to His Majeſty's Commands, I meet you in Parliament, as Chief Governor of this Kingdom; and though I feel with Diffidence and Anxiety the Weight and Importance of the Truſt with which I am honoured, yet it is Matter of pleaſing Encouragement to my Mind, that I arrive at a Period peculiarly auſpicious to Ireland. The ſubſtantial Effects of the Benefits, which the Wiſdom and Liberality of the Britiſh Parliament have lately communicated to this Country, are already apparent in the Increaſe of her Manufactures, and the Extenſion of her Commerce. From the Progreſs which has been made, notwithſtanding the Obſtacles that Induſtry muſt have ſuffered from a War, which extends itſelf over ſo great a Part of the Globe, it is but reaſonable to expect, that every Source of National Employment and Wealth will diffuſe itſelf much wider whenever the Bleſſings of Peace ſhall be reſtored.

It gives me the ſincereſt Pleaſure to execute His Majeſty's Commands, by aſſuring you, in His Royal Name, of His Determination to continue the moſt parental Attention to the increaſing Proſperity of this Country, the true Intereſts of which are, and muſt ever be, inſeparable from thoſe of Great Britain.

His Majeſty's domeſtic Happineſs has received an Increaſe, and the Proteſtant Succeſſion a further Security, by the Birth of another Prince.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

Your laſt Grants being nearly expired, it will now reſt with your Deliberation and Prudence to furniſh ſuch Supplies as you ſhall deem adequate to the Maintenance of Public Credit, the honourable Support of His Majeſty's Government, and the Safety of the Kingdom.

I have ordered the proper Accounts to be laid before you. From theſe you will be made acquainted with the State of your Revenues and Expences, and will be enabled to judge what Proviſions may be ſuitable to the Circumſtances of your Country, and the Exigencies of the Public Service. If any Meaſures can be deviſed, tending to improve the Management of the Finances, and to effectuate a more compleat and more ſecure Collection of the Revenue, they will have my chearful Concurrence.

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

Conſcious that it is my indiſpenſable Duty to promote whatever may contribute to extend the Advantages of Civil Society, I take the firſt Occaſion to call your earneſt Attention to the Encouragement of your Trade, and the Improvement of your Manufactures; and eſpecially to the perfecting and enforcing of your interior Police, as well by your Deliberations, as by the Influence of your Counſels and Examples, impreſſing upon the Minds of the People a becoming Reverence of the Laws.

The Humanity and Wiſdom of thoſe Motives which influence your Support of the Proteſtant Charter Schools, as Seminaries of true Religion and honeſt Induſtry, will continue to engage your Regard.

I am ſenſible alſo of the Expediency and good Policy of the Encouragements, which are accuſtomed to be given, as well to the Linen Manufacture as to Tillage, to the Fiſheries, the Inland Carriage and Export of Corn, and other great National Objects.

It will deſerve, however, your beſt Attention and Vigilance to aſcertain and enforce the ſtrict and due Expenditure of ſuch Sums, as may be granted for theſe wiſe and benevolent Purpoſes.

His Majeſty ardently wiſhes the Happineſs of His People of Ireland, in whoſe Affection and Loyalty He places the firmeſt Reliance. And though I am not directed to call upon you for any extraordinary Supplies, in this Time of General Hoſtility, when theſe Kingdoms are expoſed to an unnatural and dangerous Combination of Enemies, I have not the ſmalleſt Doubt that I ſhall be enabled to aſſure His Majeſty of your cordial Diſpoſition to give Him every Aſſiſtance compatible with your Means and Circumſtances.

No Event could more contribute to the Public Security, than the general Concurrence with which the late ſpirited Offers of Aſſiſtance were preſented to me from every Part of this Kingdom: And I am fully convinced, that if the Neceſſity had ariſen, it was in my Power to have called into Action all the Strength and Spirit of a brave and loyal People, eager, under my Direction, to be employed in Aid of His Majeſty's Regular Forces for the Public Defence.

I truſt that every Part of my Conduct will demonſtrate how much it is the Wiſh of my Heart to engage your Confidence: I ſhall claim it only in Proportion as I ſhall be found to deſerve it, by an unwearied Endeavour to promote the Proſperity of Ireland; and I am ſenſible, that this is the beſt Method of recommending my Services to our Sovereign, and of obtaining your Concurrence towards the Eaſe and Honor of my Adminiſtration.

Admiralty-Office, October 16, 1781.

Lieutenant Burlton, of His Majeſty's Ship Renown, arrived this Morning at Eight o'Clock with Diſpatches from Capt.
